

Module 4: Structural Characterization

- Sketch the surface of a particle, showing important features.
- What are some characteristic property gradients you will observe if you cross-section the particle? What are some analytical instruments commonly used to identify such physical & chemical property gradients, and what is their resolution capability?