

Motivation

- ❖ Large number of jobs today for computer science and engineering graduates is in creating information systems for managing organizations we thus need methods to design complex systems.
- ❖ Students should know what information is and how it is different from data.
- ❖ Should know types of information needed to manage organizations.
- ❖ Should know nature of organizations and their structure to design appropriate information system.
- ❖ Should know management structure and needs of each level of management.
- ❖ Should know functional areas of management information needs for each area.